

1156 ROYAL ROAD | ANNVILLE, PA 17003

Poultry Nutritionist – South Central, Pennsylvania

Job Description:

Poultry Management Company seeks a Poultry Nutritionist who has a strong monogastric nutrition background and has, or feels they could develop, a passion for both conventional and alternative egg production. This individual will use their skills and technical experience to support the overall success of a detailed-oriented company, which continues to shape its focus to meet changing markets of demand.

Reasons To Consider This Opportunity:

Our company is a national leader in poultry management and well-respected in both conventional and organic nutrition.

Agile small business with 30+ years of steady continuous growth experience.

Company culture is entrepreneurial, ethical, and friendly. Company focus is on the success of our clients.

Collaborative environment where ideas can be discussed with a team of talented experienced individuals.

Share your knowledge and experience to support excellence in service.

Responsibilities:

- Become an integral team member of the Nutrition Department and partner in nutrition-related company activities.
- Assist with feed formulation of bulk feed products to meet our clients' individual requirements.
- Cooperate with feed mills for pricing, ingredient information, and problem solving.
- Consult with nutrition clients on a regular basis.
- Assist in new product trials and record-keeping.
- Interact with clients, vendors, and staff to provide nutritional expertise, as needed.
- Stay current with new developments in poultry nutrition and in the poultry industry in general and be able to use that knowledge to benefit our clients.

Minimal overnight travel required.

To Be Considered For This Role You Must:

Have a masters or Ph.D. in monogastric nutrition from a recognized university.

Have at least 5 years of practical experience in monogastric nutrition and a track record of accomplishments.

Be self motivated and accountable for results.

Excellent interpersonal and communication skills are vital.

Be detail-oriented to provide personalized service to each client.

Be proactive in your thinking.

Have a team oriented attitude.

Have the ability to share your knowledge and personal experience for the benefit of our clients and to support the growth of the organization.

Be excited about being part of a quality minded, client focused organization.

Heritage Poultry Management Services, Inc. offers the opportunity to join an established company dedicated to growth and excellence. Our compensation package includes competitive salary; medical insurance; vacation; paid holidays; and a 401(k) style program with an employer match.

Interested Individuals: Send cover letter and resume to Chris Pierce, President; cpierce@heritagepms.com